

COLLEGE DEPARTMENT.

Send Subscriptions and Donations for the University, to ELDER JOSIAH KEIM,
LOUISVILLE,
Stark County, OHIO.

Bro. Josiah Keim writes that money is beginning to come in slowly. It ought to come in rapidly. Brethren can make it do so. Why not do it.

Bro. S. E. Shook is working very earnestly to get the Boarding Hall in good condition for the opening of school, Sept. 4th.

David Bailey is as diligent as ever in mailing catalogues and looking after the interests of the school.

Encouraging reports are coming in from various sources which indicate that there will be a good attendance before the holidays.

Bro. S. E. Shook visited Hayesville, where the teachers' Institute was held last week in the interests of the University.

Bro. J. M. Tombaugh recently visited his brother in Illinois.

Bro. J. A. Miller is one of the most willing and self-sacrificing workers in the church. A number of such young men together will make any good cause move along in which they are engaged.

Solicitors for the University should report the progress they are making. The people are anxious to know what you are doing, and it will make others more enthusiastic.

A student at one of the largest Normal schools in Ohio writes that he expects to come to Ashland next term. This is because the University offers a student superior advantages to all who wish to acquire a substantial education. It is not crowded, and each student will receive his due share of attention, and can learn if he is willing and will study.

Brethren receiving more than one Catalogue, will please distribute to the best of their ability. The clerks are too busy to write letters to each one, hence this notice.

Persons intending to come to Ashland at the opening of the first term should write to S. E. Shook at once to insure a proper reception. He will be very busy at the opening, and you must be prepared to exercise a little patience unless you notify him beforehand.

Bro. Yoder, if the church is so large and strong, see that the new Trustees of Ashland University do not have to "go back" on their contract all for want of a little love of the love of which is "the root of all evil." The joke would be on the other side, in that case.

The outlook for students is very good.

The Boarding Hall is being thoroughly repaired and renovated, and will make a pleasant home.

Quite a number of the citizens of Ashland are willing to rent rooms to students.

ALL CHARGES FOR FREIGHT Are paid on a Great Bargain Box of Soap, containing a large line of presents. In order to secure it send your name and post office address to J. D. Larkin & Co., Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial box of Sweet Home Soap. Here is a letter from a lady who did this and tried the soap for ten days.

Washington, Ill., June 16, 1888.
J. D. Larkin & Co.: Sirs:—Inclosed please find a P. O. Order for six (6) dollars for one box of Sweet Home Soap which I received about ten days ago. I find it all that I expected and more. It is just splendid and the presents are nice. Hoping you will receive this soon, I am

Very respectfully,

Thousands of letters like above are on file in the office of the enterprising firm referred to.

Twice Paid.

Many people seem to think that the publisher of a paper never earns his money, and he is under all sorts of obligations to every patron. Here is one who writes as a sister of Pennsylvania:

Dear Editor:—I will send you a piece of poetry for you to publish in the EVANGELIST, as this is the second one that I have sent. But you took good care not to publish the other. I don't know why it is that my money is not as good as any others. I take the EVANGELIST, and I pay for it, and I read it too, and if I can't have one little space for what I send, then it will be time to quit taking the paper and reading it the same.

I am poor but I sent one dollar for the College some time ago, but never heard anything whether it was received or not. It is very poor encouragement for any one to send money or any thing for publication to any place like that. You may feel bad at what I say, but you won't feel any worse than I did when I knew that I was slighted in your columns.

Yours in Christ.

Another brother pleadingly has this to say:

"Why is it that my wife's articles of poetry was not published. Please be free to tell me, though they may be in this week's paper, if not please explain, as she is a poor sickly woman and will soon leave us."

There is a whole handful of poetry lying around this office which has been sent us by dear, good, kind brothers and sisters.

Fourth Week In August.

What a wonderful amount of malaria in the county from undrained swamp, from stagnant pool, and from decaying vegetation. Malaria in town from sewer gas, from unventilated houses and from a thousand unsuspected cases. Half the people you meet have malaria troubles in some form or other. Many people who went out of town for the summer to "health resorts," where they expected to be braced up with pure air, have come back with malaria in their systems.

Malaria attacks the liver, sometimes causing troublesome and protracted fevers; sometimes producing only a slight derangement of that organ and its connections. Malaria attacks, whether small or great, ought to be overcome as soon as possible. There is no telling the amount of mischief they may do if allowed to continue their evil work.

With such an effective remedy at hand as Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient, nobody ought to suffer long with a malaria attack. This famous remedy strikes at the root of the trouble and gets rid of the poison in the system which has caused the disorder. Its action is as delightful as it is prompt. For all liver obstructions, bowel irregularities, sick headache, and the other ailments of the hot-weather season, Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient has no equal. All the druggists sell it.

Vestibuled Trains on the B. & O. R. R.

The first of the Baltimore and Ohio Company's new vestibuled trains has been turned out of Mt. Clare Shops and an experimental trip was made with it August 10th. The train was run from Baltimore to Keyser, 215 miles, in five hours. On the line between Baltimore and Keyser are some of the sharpest curves on the B. & O. road, but notwithstanding the high rate of speed maintained the swaying of the train was scarcely perceptible, the oscillation at the top of the car not exceeding six inches.

This test fully demonstrates what has heretofore been claimed for the vestibule device and that is, that it effectually obviates the swaying motion imparted to a train in rounding curves at high speed. The new train will be immediately placed in regular service between Philadelphia and Chicago.

All other through trains on the B. & O. will be fitted with the vestibule appliances as rapidly as possible, and within the next sixty days it is thought to have the work completed.

THE LAST DAYS OF POMPEII.

The Most Magnificent Spectacle of Modern Times at Columbus, O., during the Centennial and G. A. R. Encampment—September and October.

Of all the attractions connected with the Centennial at Columbus there will be no particular feature that can compare in interest to that weird and wonderful spectacle—"THE LAST DAYS OF POMPEII." The Centennial Exposition grounds being closed at night, it was seen at once by those most interested that the great crowds must have something to interest them in the evening. The great house of James Paine & Son, pyrotechnists, of London, England, was called upon to fill the bill for the evening entertainments. The spectacular production, "The Last Days of Pompeii," with its 10,000 square yards of scenery, was chosen. Bulwer's story of the lost city gives a vivid picture of that awful time, and the spectacle to be produced in Columbus during the Centennial is Bulwer's novel, portrayed in vivid, picturesque and awful scenes.

It will require fully 800 people to present the series of interesting events. The grand climax is the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius and the destruction of Pompeii. The temples of Isis and Neptune are shown, and the architecture of that day is reproduced. The dread mountain towers 80 feet above the city. The view of Pompeii is wonderfully realistic. In the foreground is a lake, 250 feet long. It is a fete day, and Arbaces is giving a feast in honor of Isis. On the lake are the gay and thoughtless throngs in beautiful gondolas, enjoying the pleasures of the day. Then come the sports, and the populace rush hither and thither to get the best places to view the pageant, which consists of soldiers, vestals, slaves and priests, who march around the square, chanting a hymn of praise, and enter the temple. The doors are thrown open, and the procession emerges with the image of the goddess. Arbaces, Glaucus, Ione, and Nydia the blind girl, await the coming. Glaucus refuses to bow to the image, and is denounced as a Christian. This is the signal for the great denouement. A pillar of fire shoots from the mouth of Vesuvius, followed by a cannonade of fireworks; streams of lava shoot down the mountain side; fire breaks out with loud explosions all over the city; the buildings totter and fall, and the entire city is enveloped in flames and smoke, while the doomed people rush about in a futile attempt to save themselves from destruction.

The arrangements for the public to witness this great display will be ample and commodious, seats for 10,000 being provided, and of all the interesting features of the great Centennial this will be the chief. Harper's Weekly justly says: "It may safely be said that neither in this nor any other country has been seen a more splendid spectacle."

G. A. R.

The New York, Lake Erie and Western R. R., will sell tickets from Ashland to Columbus and return on Sept. 8th to 12th, inclusive, good for return until the 19th, inclusive, at $1.85.

Christian Minister, is This You?

BY MRS. E. V. STEVENS, MONROEVILLE, IND.

I'm a temperance man—
I will do what I can;
I will earnestly talk and pray,
I will labor with might
For the cause of right:
But I cannot vote that way.
With eloquence warm,
I will urge reform.
Let all the world take note;
I never shrink
From temperance work,
Excepting when I vote.
I will labor so
That the world may know
I'm a zealous temperance man;
I will talk of laws
That will aid the cause:
But I cannot vote that way.
My tongue shall delight,
To talk of the right,
I will speak its praise each day;
I urge it strong
On the listening throng:
But I cannot vote that way.
A vote for the right
Is lost from your sight,
For the cause is weak today;
It might grow strong
If helped along:
But I cannot vote that way.
With the party strong,
Though the cause be wrong,
My vote will soon be cast;
Though want and woe
In streams may flow
Let whisky rule at last.
In the pulpit I will pray
For temperance each day;
But when I come to ballot box
I'll vote the old party way.
If this hits you, my Christian man,
I pray, God give you temperance
sand:
For the time will come when God
will say,
You hypocrite, go thy way—
You prayed temperance you know,
And voted temperance "No."
You may deceive some people here,
But to such prayers, God turns a deaf ear.
May God help you to now repent,
And to temperance work consent;
And pray and vote each day alike,
That true temperance don't take a strike:
Then God will say come up higher—
A crown he'll give you more brighter.

A perfect complexion, free from pimple or blemish, is very rarely seen, because few people have perfectly pure blood. And yet, all disfiguring eruptions are easily removed by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Try it, and surprise your friends with the result.
